UK Outlook for Saturday 1 Jan 2022 to Monday 10 Jan 2022:
On Saturday, New Year's Day, rain is likely to move east and northeast across the UK, followed by showers. The wettest weather further north and west, with the southeast remaining drier. Strong winds are expected in the west, and it will continue to be very mild. Thereafter, the unsettled weather will continue to dominate, with Atlantic weather systems moving in from the west, interspersed with showery and brighter spells. The wettest areas are expected to be western hills, with the southeast remaining driest. It will also continue to be windy, with gales possible along western coasts. Temperatures likely mild or very mild at first, but returning closer to average into the new year. There is the chance of a brief settled spell towards the end of the period.
